

Finding the plot

Access to land for food growing groups in urban areas

When: 21st October 2009, 10am-4.30pm

Where: RISC Building in Reading

This is an event for community groups and interested individuals across the country that are facing challenges in obtaining land for sustainable food production. This event will allow attendees to share skills and experience on how, through policy and practice, access to land can be improved across the UK.

A sister event next year, organised by Landshare.org, will focus on rural areas and the urban fringe.

The day will include:

- Talks from experts and keynote speaker Rosie Boycott, chair of the London Food Board.
- Lunch and an exclusive tour of the RISC edible roof garden.
- An afternoon programme of issue specific workshops and sessions, including planning constraints, site management, project sustainability and more.

RISC roof garden, Reading.

Planting brassicas, Canterbury allotments.

Rates: £25 Non-members
£15 Local Action on Food / RISC or WEN members

To book a place please download the booking form at www.localactiononfood.org and send to polly@sustainweb.org with payment. For more information Tel: 0207 837 1228.

For more information on joining Local Action on Food or Women's Environmental Network, please see www.localactiononfood.org or www.wen.org.uk.

Thanks to the Tedworth Trust for their support towards this event.