Community Food growing is not simply about how to grow your own and connect with your community. If it's done right, it will empower, educate, enthuse, and inspire you to take better care of yourself, your community and build a stronger more resilient community, better able to deal with crisis and to prepare and to prevent crisis.

Engaging with councils

- Elections on 6 May in over 150 local authorities in England
- A chance to engage with your local councillors to put food high up on the agenda and take community food growing seriously
- Not focussing on one party
- We'll be pushing an e-action & a toolkit to help people and local organisations to engage with local candidates

Join Sustainable Food Places on Monday 10am to hear more
