

Local Action on Food and the Royal Town Planning Institute invite you to

Food & Spatial Planning

How planning can support a healthy and sustainable food system local

ACTION ON FOOD

When: Friday 15th July 2011, 10am-3:30pm

Where: Pearson Building Lecture Theatre, University College London, WC1E 6BT

Spatial planning in our towns, cities and countryside shapes the food system, from influencing our food shopping and eating habits, to safe-guarding agricultural land for production and allocating spaces for urban food growing.

This event will explore how planners, food and community organisations can use planning policy to help create a more sustainable food system.

Themes will include

- Retail diversity and supermarkets
- Healthy food environments
- Land use for urban and commercial food production

Rates

- £20 Member of Local Action on Food and concessions
£40 Members of the RTPI
£50 Full price

For more information or to book a place visit www.localactiononfood.org or contact suzanne@sustainweb.org or polly@sustainweb.org or call the Sustain office on 0207 837 1228.