OUR MISSION:
ensure everyone in Islington eats at least one healthy meal each day

Our broader vision is that everyone in Islington eats enough healthy food each day. We know however that this is far from reality for many people, and this action plan sets out targeted aims and actions to combat food poverty in the areas of greatest need over the next 3 years. The mission of this action plan over the next 3 years is to ensure everyone in Islington eats at least one healthy meal each day.
Food poverty can be defined as “the inability to afford, or have access to, food to make up a healthy diet” \(^1\). The causes of food poverty are complex and inter-related. Financial causes predominate, including low income and unemployment. Other important causes include poor access to affordable food and lack of budgeting or cooking skills. Wider social and economic determinants, such as welfare reforms, also play a vital role.

The consequences of food poverty have major health impacts throughout life, ranging from hunger, malnutrition and obesity to social consequences such as shame and social exclusion. Evidence shows that poor diet is related to 30% of life years lost in early death and disability \(^2\). The severity of these consequences shows that failure to act on food poverty will lead to escalating costs for individuals, employers, the NHS and government.

THE ISLINGTON PICTURE

There is a high level of need in Islington relating to food poverty and food insecurity. Islington is the 53\(^{rd}\) most deprived local authority in England \(^3\), with extremes of rich and poor. 47.5% of children in the Borough are living in poverty \(^4\). Estimates from research figures indicate that over 19,000 in Islington experience moderate or high levels of food insecurity (1 in 10 of the population aged 15 and over in a nationally representative survey) \(^5\). Regional research indicates that almost 1 in 10 London children report going to bed hungry, with 1 in 5 London parents reporting skipping meals so that their children can eat \(^6\). Proxy measures of food poverty, including income deprivation, fuel poverty and obesity, also indicate high levels of need in Islington.

Numbers of foodbank referrals show rising requirements for emergency food aid and Trussell Trust foodbank supplied 5080 emergency food parcels in Islington in 2017/18 \(^7\). These numbers represent only the ‘tip of the iceberg’ of true levels of food poverty, as many of those affected by food poverty never visit a Trussell Trust foodbank. Evidence from local professionals strongly supports a trend towards seeing worsening levels of food poverty and many local services have extensive experience of dealing with food poverty.

Qualitative evidence from both residents and professionals, collected during interviews throughout the food poverty needs assessment in 2017 \(^8\), gave graphic descriptions of local residents’ experiences of food poverty. These ranged from long-term food insecurity to severe crisis-level hunger with food poverty, all of which have major negative impacts on health, wellbeing and quality of life. Residents’ experiences also show that it is crucial to consider the needs of residents ‘shocked’ into food poverty as well as those ‘squeezed’ into food poverty over long time periods \(^9\).

The local reasons for experiencing food poverty mirrored national data, with financial reasons being most commonly cited, including poverty, low income, issues with benefits and affordability of healthy food.

Common barriers to seeking help with food were stigma, with many describing feelings of pride or shame, and problems with referrals, such as lack of knowledge of services or restrictive service criteria. The residents suggested a range of changes which would help address food poverty, including altering the food environment to enable healthier choices, and changes to services for increased support. Professionals and residents alike shared extensive insights into changes which would help to address food poverty. Common themes emerging included changes to the food environment to improve access to affordable food and to enable healthier food choices. They also emphasised the need for stronger communication and awareness raising about food poverty. Future action on food poverty must remain responsive to a complex and rapidly evolving service landscape, and accessible for organisations to engage.

Islington Council is committed to making our Borough a fairer place for all. At the heart of this ambition is a commitment to tackling inequality and poverty. For us, there is no clearer or more damning example of the devastating impact poverty has on local people than the people we meet who are not certain where their next meal is coming from.

We have been working hard to tackle food poverty since the launch of Islington’s Food Strategy in 2010, from providing Free School Meals to all nursery and primary school pupils, to pioneering projects that seek to tackle ‘holiday hunger’. However, it is important to be clear that many of the root causes of food poverty sit at a national level, despite most of the interventions and action being taken to address it falling within local remits. The Islington Food Poverty Action Plan is a local plan, designed to be led and implemented at a local level. During its lifespan, there will be many contributing factors to rates of food poverty that it cannot influence.

What we are aiming to do is mobilise the resources and energy we have across the Borough to build a coordinated and effective approach to tackling food poverty within the scope that we have, to ensure that everyone in Islington eats at least one healthy meal each day.

The Islington Food Poverty Action Plan has been developed with input from a wide range of stakeholders, and will be collaboratively led by individuals and organisations from across all sectors and services. It has been designed to take into account all the research and insights we have to build evidence-led interventions, whilst also remaining realistic and achievable given an overall environment of limited resources and high need across communities and public and third sector organisations.

Thank you to everyone who has contributed to the development of this plan, and who will continue to do so. We hope that everyone in the Borough will find something within this Action Plan that they can contribute to, and that together, we can work to ensure that everyone in Islington eats at least one healthy meal each day.

Executive Member for Health & Social Care
Addressing food poverty has been a part of Islington’s Food Strategy since its launch in 2010. The Food Strategy Steering Group and wider partnership recognised a further need to develop specific Food Poverty Action Plan so a local needs assessment was carried out in 2017 and an Islington Food Poverty Alliance (IFPA) steering group was set up to provide oversight and implementation support. Funding was received from the Greater London Authority (GLA) in January 2018 enabling Islington to host a Food Poverty Stakeholders Summit in June 2018.

Using the needs assessment recommendations as a framework, the Food Poverty Stakeholders’ Summit focused on:

- Identifying the range of existing services
- Identifying gaps in service
- Identifying priority activities
- Confirming the core values and priorities

The summit outcomes were processed in tandem with the needs assessment findings to produce a draft Action Plan. The Food Poverty Alliance steering group provided final feedback and sign off on the Action Plan.

The Food Poverty Action Plan contains existing work, work in progress and aspirational objectives that will progress given resources, both financial and in kind. Update of the Action Plan on a “RAG rating” system will take place by those leading on delivering each of the actions.

The IFPA steering group will also use the Food Strategy membership of Sustainable Food Cities and Food Power to keep up to date with national progress on similar actions and identify new ideas and new ways of working together.

The wider Food Poverty Alliance consists of members who work in areas impacting on food poverty but are not able to commit to regular steering group activities. The Alliance will be kept up to date regularly by email and web page updates as well as occasional events.
Who are our key stakeholders?

- Businesses
- Third sector and community organisations
- Citizens and communities
- Funders and grant makers
- Local government, the public sector and public sector professionals
- Schools and year year’s settings

Key messages for all stakeholders can be found on pages 18 - 24
The following key principles thread through all of the work and approaches to successfully delivering the Food Poverty Action Plan:

Recognising that food based services and support can be used as a solution to multiple issues alongside food poverty, including:

- Improving health and nutrition
- Addressing social isolation
- Being an identifier of broader poverty issues, and an entry point into providing further support
- Sustainability and environmental issues

Encouraging positive and empowering messaging throughout Islington in particular presenting services and support as opportunities for:

- Sharing food knowledge around growing, shopping and cooking
- Learning new skills
- Reducing food waste
- Building communities, using food as a form of sharing and cross-cultural meeting

Ensuring all services and support are designed to tackle root causes of poverty alongside providing crisis support
We recognise that there are groups within our communities that can be more at risk of food poverty, and can have a lack of appropriate services and support available to them. Therefore our Action Plan includes a number of tailored interventions aimed particularly at supporting the following groups:

- Pregnant Women and Children Under 5
- Children and Young People
- Elderly People
- Refugee and Asylum Seeking and Newly Arrived Migrant Communities
- People Experiencing Homelessness
- People Reliant on Universal Credit and Benefits as Their Main Source of Income
- Working Poor

Please note, this is a summarised version of Islington’s Food Poverty Action Plan. A full version, with further details on aims, measurement and indicators, leads, partners and progress is also available.
The overall aim of the Action Plan is to ensure everyone in Islington eats one healthy meal a day. We have also outlined one key overall outcome for each aim within the Action Plan, as laid out below.

It’s important to note that we are operating in a difficult national context, where levels of inequality are rising, welfare cuts and changes are squeezing more people into poverty, costs of living are getting higher, and our political future is uncertain. There are many causes of food poverty that are outside the sphere of impact that this Action Plan can have, and therefore we recognise that the impact of this plan may actually be to slow down the increase of food poverty, rather than reduce rates overall.

We also recognise that this Action Plan is being overseen and implemented by organisations with limited resources, operating in an environment of high need. We therefore are committed to ensuring we balance time spent monitoring and evaluating with time spent actually delivering on the key aims and activities.
